

2010
Scholarships & Awards

Joel Polsky Prize

plan.
design.
lead.

2010
Scholarships & Awards

Joel Polsky Prize

The Joel Polsky Prize is given by the ASID Foundation to recognize outstanding academic contributions to the discipline of interior design through literature (published books) or visual communication (informational video tapes, CDs, etc.). Material will be judged on innovative subject matter, comprehensive coverage of topic, organization, graphic presentation, bibliography and references.

HOW TO APPLY

Deadline

March 1, 2010

Eligibility

Entries should address the needs of the public, designers and students on topics including: design process, business practice, educational research, behavioral science, theory or other technical subjects through literature (published books) or visual communication (informational video tapes, CDs, etc.)

Application Process

1. Complete online application
2. Email application materials to foundation@asid.org
 - Literature (published books) or visual communication (informational video tapes, CDs, etc.)
 - o Six hard copies can be mailed if your submission is unavailable in electronic format to: ASID, 608 Massachusetts Ave. NE, Washington, DC 20002
 - Photo (300 dpi in jpeg or gif format)

Finalist and Winners

The ASID Foundation will review all submissions and select winners based on the stated criteria. The decision of the jury process will be final. All entrants will be notified of their status by mail in April 2010. Award payments will be made directly to the student. Winners will be recognized publicly through a variety of print and electronic media.

Award

$1000

About ASID

The American Society of Interior Designers (ASID) is a community of people—designers, industry representatives, educators and students—committed to interior design. Through education, knowledge sharing, advocacy, community building and outreach, the Society strives to advance the interior design profession and, in the process, to demonstrate and celebrate the power of design to positively change people's lives. Its more than 36,000 members engage in a variety of professional programs and activities through a network of 48 chapters throughout the United States and Canada.

About ASID Foundation

As the leading interior design organization, ASID is dedicated to progressing the profession of interior design. The ASID Foundation supports endeavors that capture and disseminate knowledge, encourage innovation, and benefit the health safety, and welfare of the public through interior design research, scholarships and education. The Foundation's newest partnership with Rebuilding Together focuses on rehabilitating the houses of low-income active and retired members of the military. Other ASID Foundation initiatives include CIDA's Accreditation Process Review and REGREEN, a collaborative with the U.S. Green Building Council.